NAMI: Fabric Light

On the occasion of Salone del Mobile 2016, Kreoo introduced a new sink among all the items of its vast collection: Nami.

Nami means "wave" in Japanese and it is an oval washbasin, whose sinuosity is reminiscent of a cloth's drapery: marble is manipulated with sculptural skills, creating soft waves on its outer side.

The reference comes from the Italian figurative Art History, and more specifically from the monumental drapery of Michelangelo's Pietà, Virgin's dress. In the game of lights and shadows, marble is presented as a light, sophisticated and precious material. Unique, because even if Nami is born from an industrial process, is then modeled by skilled masters craftsmen who, paying tribute to the Italian ancient sculptural tradition, give the product the plus value of being unrepeatable.

A strong recall to the uniqueness of craftsmanship capabilities, to give marble not only a shape, but also a "feeling."

An exclusive design object presented in "Bianco Carrara" marble (as in the Michelangelo's Pietà), another reference to our country artistic tradition. Moreover, from this April "Bianco Carrara" is proposed in Kreoo catalogue for many items in its collections.

Nami is also proposed in Bianco Calacatta, Bianco Perla and Nero Marquina.

Like all Kreoo products, each customization is possible, on demand.

Nami can be placed on all Kreoo's accessories for the bathroom (trays, easels, wall brackets and wood top) or ordered separately.
